Go-to-Market Plan for an AI Initiative

A go-to-market plan for launching an AI capability inside a community bank or credit union. Six sections, one page.

For: Marketing, retail, and product leaders launching an AI capability internally or to members 7 min

AUDIENCE

Who this is for, in concrete terms. Avoid "all customers" or "all employees." Name the segment, role, or branch tier.

Internal audience: which roles, which branches, which department.

External audience: which member segment, which channel they engage through.

Influencers: examiners, board members, partner credit unions.

PROMISE

One sentence the audience can repeat without your help.

What changes for them.

When it changes.

What is not changing (the reassurance side of the promise).

PROOF

What evidence supports the promise, sourced.

Internal: pilot results, time savings, sample artifacts produced.

External: named industry sources, peer evidence, sourced consumer expectations.

Regulatory: the governance and review structure under the capability.

CHANNELS

Where the message lands.

Internal: all-hands, team huddles, intranet, manager talking points.

External (members): app, email, branch signage, statement inserts as appropriate.

External (industry): peer associations, your regulator relationship, ecosystem partners.

LAUNCH TIMELINE

Concrete dates. Without dates, this is not a plan.

Internal soft launch (small named group).

Internal full launch (institution-wide).

External announcement window — and explicit pre-announce silence period.

First metrics review date.

METRICS

Three to five measurable signals. Defined before launch, not after.

Adoption — who is using it, at what cadence.

Quality — what proportion of outputs pass review on first pass.

Risk — incidents per period, with severity.

Outcome — the business metric the capability is meant to move.

ADAPT BEFORE ADOPTING

These are starters — not final policy.

Every template names a section your institution should change. Bring it to your committee, your auditor, and your examiner before adoption.
